'24 ALUMNI DAY HUGE SUCCESS; REUNIONS HELD

Class Reunions, Banquets, Basketball Game and Dancing Party.

Culminating in the best-attended and most-enjoyable dancing party ever held by the alumni, Alumni Day, arranged by and for graduates and former students of the Gettysburg High School, came to a close early this morning, after a series of pleasurable experiences on Friday.

The day opened officially with banquets and reunions by the classes of 1920 and 1921. Nineteen members of the class of 1920 met at the Blue Parrot Tea Room for a turkey dinner. Reminiscences of high school days formed the gist of impromptu talks by various members of the class. Since their graduation almost five years ago, members of the class have rapidly forged ahead in business in Gettysburg and elsewhere, and every one reported progress.

Reunions—Banquets

Fourteen members of the class of 1921 held their reunion and banquet at the Hotel Gettysburg, where a turkey dinner was served, while the former high school students told classroom stories and recounted incidents and high spots of their academic days.

A short breathing space followed the reunions and banquets, and at 7 o'clock, a good-sized crowd of alumni and former students cheered to the echo their basketball team, although the former high passers went down in defeat, 30 to 27, before the fast-moving Maroon and White tossers.

The basketball game over, the alumni and members of the senior class at high school went to Natural Springs Park, east of town, where a dancing party was staged from 9 until 1 o'clock. Music was furnished by Eddie Brubaker's Orchestra, of Harrisburg. The orchestra was frequently encircled and generously responded with additional dances.

At intermission, refreshments of ice cream, cake, coffee and cocoa were served. More than 100 couples attended the function.

The following guests were present at the party: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bushman, Mr. and Mrs. Gift Walter, Myrna Shelly, Arendtsville; Mary Rupp, Shiremanstown; Mr. and Mrs. George Funt, Camp Hill; Margaret Raffensperger, Edna Hartman, Harrisburg; Hazel Van Dyke, Goldenville; Lolla Eppelman, Aspers; Theodore Bahner, Harrisburg; Grayson Peters, Gettysburg; Lott Boyer, Cameron Hoffman, George Klepper, Ralph Rice, Roy Lady, Arendtsville, and Rev. Homeless Men March on Church

URBAN LEDOUX & 'THE POT'.

Driven by the intense cold to seek shelter, 300 homeless derelicts in New York, led by Urbain Ledoux, known also, paradoxically, as "Mr. Zero," because of his zeal in behalf of the unfortunate, marched upon and obtained permission to use the Camp Memorial Church as sleeping quarters. "Mr. Zero" is solving the question of food also, insofar as the limited resources of his little hobo's retreat, "The Tub," enable him to do so. He has appealed to the authorities for aid of the thinly-clad and hungry throng.

PHONE DISPUTE SETTLED HERE

Orrtanna Youths Apprehended Charged With Pulling Out Telephone Posts on Property.

AGREE TO PAY COSTS

A dispute over the erection of some telephone poles on farm property near Orrtanna, between the property owners and the management of the Carroll Tract company, a privately owned phone company, resulted in police action yesterday and a satisfactory settlement.

James and Mark Pepple, aged about 24 and 29 respectively, were brought into state police headquarters yesterday afternoon by Trooper Frutchey, upon complaint of H. F. Lawson, secretary and manager of the Carroll Tract company, a small privately owned telephone company, operating in the vicinity of Orrtanna in conjunction and cooperation with the Cumberland Valley Company.

Secretary Lawson complained that the two young men had pulled out seven telephone poles, on the Pepple farm property, destroying service in that district. Trooper Frutchey was assigned to the case by Sergeant Dahlstrom and yesterday afternoon the two young men were brought into state police headquarters for questioning.

Boys Give Version

When Asked to give their version of the case, the two youths stated that the telephone company had destroyed some timber on their lands while erecting the poles and that they demanded restitution. It developed further that about eight years ago John Pepple, deceased, father of James and Mark, had given the telephone company unwritten permission to erect the poles, when the phone company organized for the purpose of establishing telephone communication in that district. The phone company was not given a written agreement, it was said, but that other property owners in and about Orrtanna had done the same as Mr. Pepple in order to establish the company and acquire the phone service.

The two youths then stated that they were willing to grant a similar request, but they alleged that in erecting the poles the Carroll Tract company had destroyed some timber, in order to stretch out their lines, which they objected to. They admitted pulling out four posts.

The difference was settled, when the two youths agreed to pay the costs involved and not to pull out any more telephone posts.

GUIDES PLAN UNIFORM CARDS

Battlefield Guide Association to Advertise "Gettysburg, The Heart of a New America."

At a meeting of the Gettysburg Battlefield Guides' Association to be held January 5, a vote will be taken on the question on whether or not the guides shall adopt uniform personal cards.

A committee, composed of Frank Lott, C. A. Sheads and J. Warren Gilbert, appointed to investigate the uniform card plan, is expected to make a favorable report at the coming meeting, it was learned from a member of the committee today.

Only members of the guides association will be entitled to use the cards, which will be distinctive. The committee, it was stated, is undecided whether to have the cards engraved or printed, and this question is expected to be settled by the guides at their meeting.

Greatest Battlefield

According to one plan of the committee, each guide will countersign his own cards. It is planned to have two distinctive slogans on the cards, one of them, "See America's Greatest Battlefield" and the other, "Gettysburg, The Heart of a New America." The card will also set forth that the guide is a member of the association, to which 75 of the 95 battlefield guides on the field belong.

The guides are urging their members and every businessman and merchant in town to use one or the other of the two slogans on all advertising matter, stationery and billheads, to more thoroughly advertise Gettysburg and its historic connections.

Dues in the guides' association for 1925 are $3 and guides who do not belong are being urged to join before the first meeting in the new year.

NAME AVENUE FOR ST. JOHN M'CLEAN

Former Resident of Gettysburg, Publisher of String of Newspapers Honored by New York.

St. John McClean, native and former resident of Gettysburg, has been honored by the city of New York in having an avenue in the metropolis named for him.

McClellan avenue runs to Fort Wadsworth, one of the main defenses of the city from attacks by sea. It is a paved, broad thoroughfare.

The action was taken by the New York board of aldermen this week upon request of members of Mayor Hylan's cabinet in recognition of the work done by Mr. McClean in advancing the interests of Staten Island. It is said to be unusual for a newspaper man to be thus signally honored by the New York city government.

Mr. McClean is a son of the late Judge William McClean and a brother of William Arch McClean, Esq., publisher of The Gettysburg Compiler. He was one of the first editors of The Gettysburg Times, having begun his newspaper career here. He is at present managing editor of a string of newspapers in New York and New Jersey, including the Staten Island Advance and the Mayonne (N. J.) Times.

MAKES CANNON TO END LIFE

Spike Bullet, Shot Into Heart, Is Removed by Surgeons and Would-Be-Suicide Lives.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Max Peck was alive today after surgeons had extracted a bullet from his heart, that fact being hardly less remarkable, his friends say, than the manner in which he was wounded.

Lonely in a lodging house Christmas eve, Peck decided to end his life. Having no weapon, he constructed a cannon of a piece of lead pipe, rammed home a charge of powder and for a bullet used a piece of steel spike. He placed this on a table, pointed it at his heart and exploded the charge with a red hot wire. Physicians today opened a flap in Peck's chest, cut through the sack around the heart, stilled its beating and with pressure forced out the spike bullet. The heart was then relaxed and it resumed beating.

Gets Deer After 8 Years' Hunting

Although the season ended officially on December 15, tales of the deer killed in the South Mountain district still trickle into Gettysburg. After hunting deer for eight years without bringing down his buck, C. Ralph Hart, Aspers R. 1, made his first kill on the third day of the recent season. The deer, a six-pointer, was shot near Mount Tabor.

Governor Declares Philadelphia, Mentioned For Speakership in House, Is a "Wet."

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Dec. 27.—Governor Pinchot in a statement today on the contest for speakership for the State House of Representatives declared that the record of Thomas Bluett, Philadelphia, who was endorsed at a caucus of the Republican delegation yesterday for the office, "is consistently wet" and asserted his election "would subordinate every other issue in the coming legislature to a wet and dry fight."

Declaring that the "Republican party in Pennsylvania is dry" the Governor appealed "to the men and women of Pennsylvania who believe in the constitution to see to it that their representatives in the House shall choose for speaker a man who believes as they do" and to the "Republicans of Pennsylvania to see to it that a speaker is chosen who is in sympathy with the fundamental principles of the party."

The statement which was addressed "to the people of Pennsylvania" was issued after a conference between the Governor and C. J. Goodnough, speaker in the 1923 House. Mr. Goodnough, also mentioned as a candidate for the speakership, refused to talk, but said he would announce his position later today.

WILD BULLISH MOVE ON STOCK MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Dec. 27.—Stock prices broke out in another wild bullish demonstration today, more than 40 issues reaching new peak prices for the year. Coppers continued to lead the advance, but they were closely pressed by the equipments. Transactions in the standard industrials were in large volume. Rails showed a strong undertone. The closing was strong.

RECRUIT FORCE AT SILK MILLS DAY AND NIGHT

Expect Plant to Continue to Operate at Full Capacity, Says Manager Jones.

Both day and night forces at the Gettysburg plant of the J. H. and C. K. Eagle Silk company are gradually being recruited to full strength and there is every indication that the plant will continue to operate at full capacity throughout the coming year, Arthur Jones, general manager, told The Times today.

This is in striking contrast to the greatly curtailed schedule under which the local plant, and all the other plants under the control of the same company, in common with silk mills everywhere, operated during the year just ending, it is pointed out. Most of this year, the industry averaged only about 50 per cent of normal.

Everybody Benefits

This statement of Mr. Jones, following the assertion of M. C. Jones, general manager of the local furniture factories, that prospects for the furniture business are somewhat better this year than last, would indicate, it is pointed out, that Gettysburg and Adams county people are to share in increased prosperity, already being felt in all parts of the country, during the coming twelve-month period. The furniture companies, during the past year, were able to operate full strength, but most other lines of industry in the county felt the slight depression, which in turn "was passed along to the business interests in general and affected the pocketbooks of every citizen."

The silk mill will have a total of 250 hands when finally recruited to full strength, Arthur Jones stated, with an annual payroll of approximately $100,000. The number of employees at the local mill has been increased twenty per cent within the last few weeks, it is stated.

The silk company is now erecting a new dye house at Shamokin which will incorporate a new system and style in the manufacture of silk and contribute to the activities of the Gettysburg plant, Mr. Jones said. The company now has nine plants in operation and the plant now in course of operation will make ten when completed.

Prospects Favorable

"The silk market and manufacturing prospects are unusually favorable for the coming year," Mr. Jones said. "The break in the market has come, and steady and satisfactory work during the year is in prospect. During the year just ending, practically all silk production was curtailed to half the normal output due to a decrease in the demand and a surplus on the market. At present, the surplus has been almost completely absorbed and there is a pick-up in production all along the line."

"There is also a more diversified line of work in the manufacture of silk than ever before which will tend to keep the wheels humming in the future. Introduction of the 'Jacker' looms for fancy work, in addition to the manufacturer of plain broadcloth silks, will aid in keeping all the plants of our company working during the coming year," Mr. Jones added.

ELKS SKATING PARTY TUESDAY

All Children of Gettysburg Who Enjoy Sport Urged to Attend.

Skate, children, skate. This will be the order next Tuesday afternoon, when boys and girls of Gettysburg, who enjoying skating on the smooth surface of a frozen stream, on sharp runners, are given their annual skating party by Gettysburg lodge, No. 1045, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

The children will be taken to Marsh Creek Heights in motor trucks, leaving from the lodge rooms, on Chambersburg street, where the children have been asked to meet, at 1 o'clock.

The ice on Marsh Creek is more than six inches thick and is said to be ideal for skating. No chances will be taken, however, and grown-ups will watch the children throughout the afternoon.

After skating has been indulged in for several hours, refreshments will be served the children in one of the numerous cottages at the summer resort.

Eva Tanguay, noted comedienne, collapsed in a theatre at Providence, R. I., and is in a critical condition because of pneumonia. Remarkable presence of mind enabled Miss Margot Kelly, of the cast of "The Second Mrs. Tanager," to avert a disastrous fire and panic in the Cort Theatre, New York, when a cigarette she tossed away, as part of her role, fell into a mass of artificial flowers in the stage setting. She seized the flowers and tossed them off stage just as they burst into flame, then calmly continued her role, while the audience, which had started to its feet, dropped back again into vacated seats and drowned out the actresses' words in a roar of applause. Paris courts have ruled that Edith Kelly Gould, American dancer, must pay out of her own funds the cost of fifty-five pairs of stockings which she purchased from a Paris shop. She had endeavored to force her former husband, Frank J. Gould, to foot the bill. Jules J. SCOUTS DEFEAT ARENDSVILLE IS LAID TO REST

Presentation of Merit Badges and "Feed" Is Held in Scout Headquarters After Tilt.

The basketball team of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, of Gettysburg, added another to its string of victories by trimming the Arendtsville Boy Scout quintet by the score 27-13, in a return game at the college gymnasium, Friday evening, following the Alumni-High game. It was the third victory out of as many starts for the local scouts.

After the game, the Arendtsville scouts and their friends were guests of Troop 3, at their club rooms in the Weaver building. Howard Warren was voted into membership in the troop and eleven merit badges were presented to as many scouts. The court of honor, with Walter D. Reynolds, president, will hold its next meeting for the distribution of merit badges on January 14.

Comments Scouts J. E. Snyder, one of the borough councilmen, and father of one of the scouts in Troop 3, commended the scouts for their many services to the community, congratulating them especially on the efficient manner in which they handled traffic in town during the past two summers.

C. A. Arneson, a student at Gettysburg College, and former member of the United States Navy, addressed the scouts on knot tying and splicing, and consented to instruct the troop in that work during the winter.

Harry Sadler addressed the troop on respect to the American flag.

After the meeting, sandwiches and ice cream were served.

Machine of C. G. Taylor, Near Arendtsville, Skids on Icy Road and Crashes Into Tree.

Running onto a particularly icy piece of road on a down grade on the Mummaburg road, while driving toward Gettysburg this morning, the touring car of C. G. Taylor, near Arendtsville, skidded and crashed into a tree.

Mr. Taylor, who was driving, suffered several minor cuts on his face, but his daughter, Miss Margaret, 29, who was riding in the front seat with her father, escaped injury, although she was thrown out of the door when the car crashed.

Mr. Taylor stated that he was driving at a moderate rate of speed, and that the accident occurred on a curve, on which there was still considerable ice from the recent rain and sleet. The accident happened at 8 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Taylor was thrown against the windshield head first, and was cut by flying glass when the pane was shattered. His daughter was thrown out of the car and lay stunned for a few seconds, but was otherwise uninjured.

The impact with the tree damaged the right front side of the machine, and the frame apparently is bent. The engine, however, continued running after the accident. The damaged car was towed to the Eddie Plank Garage, York street, for repairs.

CHICAGOAN TO ASSIST PROBE

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, Dec. 27.—William D. Shepherd arrived in Chicago today from New Mexico to project himself into the investigation of the death of his foster-son, William M. McClintock, "the millionaire orphan." He said he would seek a public exoneration of the publicity which has been directed against him.

"I have come voluntarily to answer such questions as may be asked me and also to ask some questions myself," Mr. Shepherd said. "I will seek a public exoneration as widespread as the publicity given the accusation against me."

Be great in act as you have been in thought.

The world seemed a very good place to Lady Mary as, from the depths of her chair under the cedar tree on the following afternoon, she watched Christopher, conducted as far as the terrace by the butler, descend the steps lightly and move across the lawn toward her. He walked with the dignity and assurance of a man whose life is being worthily lived. It was a long way across the lawn, and the girl who waited for his coming had time for a crowd of pleasant thoughts as she watched the approach of the man on whom she had set her heart. Everything that he did and had done in life appealed to her. He had sentiment enough—that was proved by the tenderness for Myrtle to which he had confessed that night at Monte Carlo, a night which she had always remembered as one of the unhappiest of her life. She had long since been convinced, both by his manner and Myrtle's, that the tenderness, such as it had been, had become merged in a purely fraternal and kindly regard. Of his reticence toward herself she thought nothing. He was possessed, as she well knew, of a very high sense of honor, and she had always felt that, however greatly he might have desired to hear his declaration, he would say nothing until he had passed definitely out of the somewhat miscellaneous category of rising young men into the position of one whose future is assured. Today he was the youngest K. C. and a seat in parliament was almost within his reach. She thought of her own fortune with a deep sense of pleasure. It was larger than he imagined, larger than any one else except herself and her father knew. Christopher would be free to make the best of himself, free for all time from any shadow of financial worry. How well he looked, how strong and eager! She held out both her hands as he drew near, and her smile of welcome made her for a moment radiantly beautiful. "How delightful to see you, Christopher!" she exclaimed. "And what wonderful news! It's just what you wanted, isn't it, and just what we all wanted for you?" He took her hands and stood smiling down at her. Her heart was beginning to beat more quickly. She hoped that he would suggest walking in the gardens. He did not sit down, nor did he suggest the gardens. He had looked around for a moment, almost as though disappointed to find her alone. Still her heart did not misgrieve her. She thought him a little nervous, and she smiled tolerantly. "You were a dear to telegraph to me at once," she said. "I can't tell you how interested and flattered I was." "I wanted you all to know," he declared, looking around once more. "How is every one?" "In excellent health, thank you," she answered. Father is having his usual afternoon sleep. Gerald has been here, but, as I dare say you know, he went away this morning. We must talk about him later, Christopher. I am rather worried—but that can wait. Will you sit down, or would you like to see how wonderful the gardens are?" He looked at her a little apologetically.

cally, yet without the slightest idea of how great an apology was needed. "I wondered," he said, "if I could see Myrtle."

"Myrtle?" Mary repeated. He assented a little sheepishly, yet with a rather engaging smile. "I wanted to see her and tell her about it," he confided. "She won't understand just what it means, perhaps, but she's so much more of a woman now."

His voice seemed to come from a long way off. It seemed all part of a horrible nightmare, something unreal, some black thought, the figment of a nocturnal fancy. Then she was conscious of his standing before her, waiting, expectant, with the eagerness of a lover in his eyes.

"Myrtle went down to gather some roses," she told him. "You will find her at the end of the pergola." He was gone almost before the words had left her lips, gone with some sort of mumbled excuse, unconscious of the tragedy he had created, clumsily obvious of the fierce struggle which had kept her calm and collected. She turned her head and watched him go, watched his long, eager footsteps, saw his tall figure stoop as he entered the pergola. Her fingers tore at the sides of her chair. She looked at the distance between her and the terrace steps. If only she could escape! Her limbs for the time seemed powerless. She sat there with all the healthy color drained from her cheeks, her fixed eyes seeing nothing but the ruin of her confident hopes. She could see herself growing old, marching down the avenues of time, preserving in a certain measure, perhaps, her dignity, but growing day by day a little more jealous and narrow, a little more captious of the happiness of others. There was only one Christopher, and he was there at the bottom of the pergola with Myrtle. Even in her bitterness she did not blame him for a moment. There were a hundred different ways in which she might have misunderstood him. She had made the foolish mistake of many ignorant young women. She had mistaken companionship, and the desire for companionship, on his part, for the subtler and rarer gift which she herself had been so ready to offer. Christopher, she remembered, had even warned her, more than a year ago, at the villa in Monte Carlo that night when they had paced the terrace together. She had refused to take him seriously, and he had never once reverted to the subject.

RIDES PILOT OF TRAIN, 12 MILES

Indianapolis, Dec. 27.—"I've thanked God a thousand times that I'm alive," sobbed Mrs. Mary Clark, 19, as she lay on a hospital cot here today and described a Christmas night ride of twelve miles on the locomotive pilot of the Knickerbocker special, a fast New York Central train running from Indianapolis to New York.

Mrs. Clark was caught on the pilot when the train demolished an automobile at a crossing here, killing one member of her family and injuring two others. An investigation is being made to learn why the train did not stop after the collision.

ALUMNI LOSE TO HIGH FIVE

Maroon and White Basketball Quintet Tumbles Hopes of Older Opponents and Win 30-27.

For the first time in a number of years, the Gettysburg High School varsity basketball squad trimmed the Alumni last night in the college gym, 30 to 27. It was one of the hardest games the high school has battled or expects to undergo this season, and the Maroon and White players fought with a determination that is seldom displayed by a high school five.

A large crowd witnessed the contest, the annual classic being one of the most popular events on the high school basketball schedule.

The veterans of former high school days started out with a rush and it appeared as though the varsity would again tumble under the onslaught of their older opponents. However, the youthful aspirants to berths on the Maroon and White quint continued their assault against the Alumni and when the final whistle sounded had piled up a margin of three points for victory.

CALLES REFUSES RADICAL RELEASE

Mexico City, Dec. 27.—President Calles, the extreme radical of Mexican politics, has shown his insistence on law and order by refusing to listen to Vera Cruz radicals, who have been seeking the release of Heron Proal, a radical agitator.

Proal ruled unmolested in Vera Cruz for three years, but was arrested on Calles' order for insulting the army and the president and for terrorizing people.

In a statement to the Tenants' Union of Vera Cruz, which Proal headed, the president said: "The Government is not disposed to tolerate further insults caused by a man responsible for demonstrations which have led to assassinations."

"OLD FASHIONED" XMAS, FAIRFIELD

Fairfield celebrated Christmas "in the good old fashioned way." On Monday evening, the Reformed church, the Rev. W. C. Pugh, pastor, was the scene of a cantata, "The Nativity," and on Wednesday evening, the Lutheran church, the Rev. Ralph Baker, pastor, was filled for the presentation of the cantata, "The True Christmas."

On Christmas eve, Santa Claus visited the town and, going from door to door, presented pop corn balls and oranges to all children. On Christmas morning, the milkmen of the town presented everybody with milk. Attached to every bottle was a Christmas greeting card.

Baskets were distributed among the deserving families of the town, through the generosity of Fairfield's public-spirited citizens.

NEWSPAPERS AND READERS

There are few persons with a certain degree of intelligence who do not have a well defined idea in their minds as to how to operate a newspaper. Criticisms occasionally received, always welcomed, and frequently published in the "communications" column of this newspaper, demonstrate the truth of that statement.

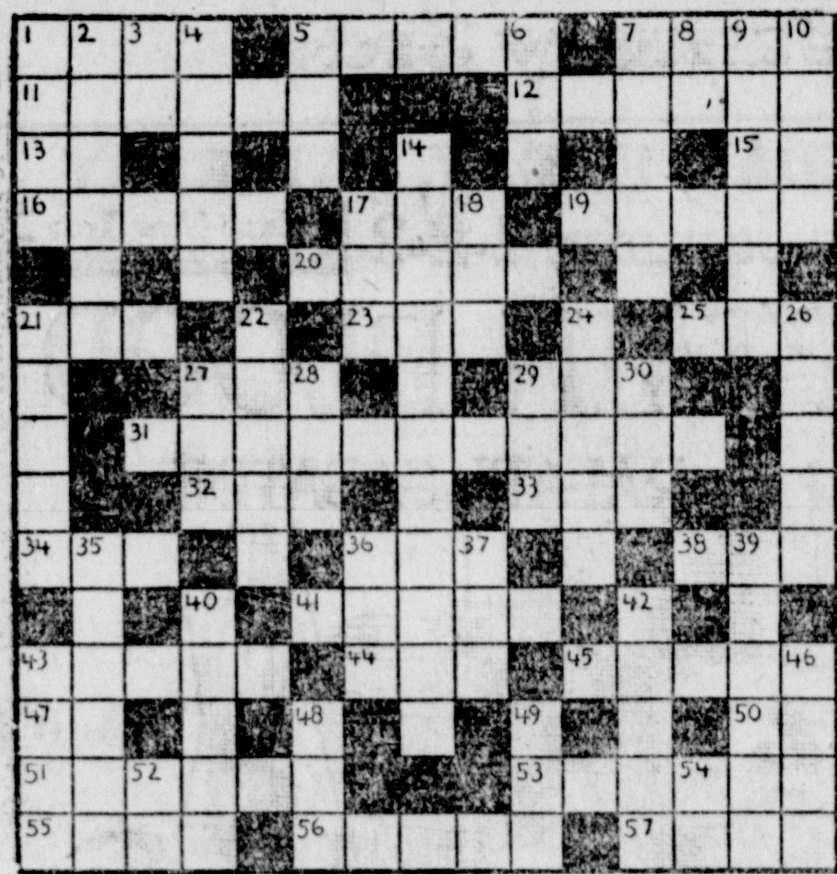

In theory, most of the suggested ideas are excellent and might be adopted to the advantage and welfare of the community of which the newspaper is a vital part. But from a practical viewpoint, the suggestions usually go wide of the mark. In this connection, the words of Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the New York World, are interesting. Mr. Swope says:

"On the whole, the press today is better than its readers. Not so long ago the system of newspapers was chiefly to print that which people would talk about. This opened the door to salacity and sensationalism. Certain successes, so-called, proved that theory to be sound, from the standpoint of mere circulation. But today, the best part of the press prints mostly what its public OUGHT to read, although, at the same time, if it is to continue to live it must supply, in some measure, what the public WANTS to read."

There will always exist a difference of opinion between newspaper editors and managers and a certain element of the rank and file of readers, but that is a healthy state and tends to keep the makers of newspapers ever alert.

Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft
might win,
By fearing to attempt.
—Shakespeare.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

GIVE ME TO LIVE MY LIFE AGAIN

Give me to live my life again
And this I'd long to be
As friendly to my fellow men
As men have been to me;
For pomp of wealth and pride of place
I'd strive a little less,
And seek a little more to trace
The vein of happiness.

Give me to fare earth's journey o'er,
Still knowing what I've found,
And I should keep a gentle door
With children romping 'round;
And I should give to birds and flowers
A little longer time
And read the record of my powers
Where summer roses climb.

Give me to start from twenty-one
My soul anew to make,
I would not blindly hurry on
Through many a sad mistake;
I'd tread a kindlier, broader way
And seek men's heart to reach,
For all life prompted me to say
I'd use a gentler speech.

Give me a second life to live
Upon this lovely earth,
More thought to fellowship I'd give
And less to selfish worth;
And, knowing what I've come to know,
I'd want my wealth displayed,
Not in life's glittering pomp and show,
But in the friends I'd made.

--the man who invented the Christmas Club--

conferred a boon on mankind

He made it possible for everybody—even those with the most limited incomes—to give as only the rich used to do. He made it possible for us to provide funds to indulge in generous giving without missing the money. He made it possible for us to save for dozens of other things other than the purchase of gifts. He made a happier Christmas for thousands of people every year. Have you ever shared any of the advantages of a Christmas Club? If so, nothing can prevent you from joining one for 1925. If not, Join ours today and you will be a life member.
